TORIES DEMORALIZED.

A SHAMEFUL BARGAIN IN NORTH DUPHAM. THE CONSERVATIVE VICTORY DUE TO AN ALLIANCE WITH THE LAND LEAGUE -- MESSES. PARNELL AND HEALY THE STAUNCH SUPPORTERS OF SIR GEORGE ELLIOT-THE ERRATIC CAREER OF MR. JOSEPH COWEN-THE POLITICS OF EMOTION-A HETEROGENEOUS LEAGUE OF CONSERVATIVE, FENIAN AND RADICAL RUN MAD ARRAYED

AGAINST THE GOVERNMENT. FROM THE REGULAR CORRESPONDENT OF THE TRIBUNE.1 LONDON, Sept. 6.—The cry of Fair Trade and the distress of the farmers, by help of which Mr. James Lowther won North Lincolnshire, had something to do with the success of Sir George Elliot in North Durham, but they were not the main causes of it. Sir George Elliot adopted the Fair Trade cry quife as readily as Mr. Lowther, and it helped him. But he owes his election first and foremost to Mr. Parnell. He opened negotiations with Mr. Parnell-or Mr. Parnell with him, it does not matter which-some time before he consented to stand, He did not decide to stand till those negetiations had come to a satisfactory conclusion. When his decision was taken, it was Mr. Parnell who had the first intimation of it; who knew it, in fact, before the Conservative committee knew it. A bargain was made between the president of the Irish Land League and the representative and caudidate of the Conservative party in North Durham. In pursuance of the terms of that bargain, Mr. Parnell transferred and delivered to Sir George Einot the entire body of Irish veters in that division of the county. It is not known what the consideration of the sale was. Mr. Parnell may have been contenwith little, for the bargain gave him an opportunity of a vengeance upon the Government he hates. But it is conjectured that Sir George Elliot is under some sort of pledge to vote against Coercion whenever it may suit Mr. Parnell's book to raise that question in the House. He is a member of a party which approves Coercion, and which gave eager and efficient help to the Government in passing their Coercion bill last session. But on the stump he censured it, and reproached the Government for not opening the doors of Kılmaınham Jail to the 200 Leaguers and Whiteboya to whom it now offers a considerate hospitality. Sir George Elliot, in short, presented himself to the electors of North Durham as the protégé of Mr. Parnell, and was accepted as such. The number of Irish voters in the constituency is variously estimated from 500 to 1,000. Be they more or less they are almost to a man of the violent type, more Home Rulers than Leaguers and more Fenians than Home Rulers. And to a man they obeyed Mr. Parnell's orders. The violence of his letter to them showed that he was addressing violent men, and he chose the most violent of his lieutenants, Mr. Healy, as his envoy for the purposes of the cauvass. Mr. Healy is himself a Newcastle man, understands the ways of the North country, and could give full rein to his tongue, which, even when bridled by the fear of consequences in the House of Commons, surpassed Mr. Biggar's in the foulness of its speech It is on the shoulders of Mr. Paraell and Mr. Healy that Sir George Elliot is borne into Parliament. When a new member presents himself in the House to take the oath, it is the custom that he should be introduced by two triends of his own party. They accompany him from the bar of the House to the table. Who so fit as Mr. Parnell and Mr. Healy to do this friendly office for Sir George Elliot ? These two men are the leading spirits of a policy which embodies everything that the Conservative party most abhors. And they are precisely the two men who have contributed most to the Conservative victory in North Durham. Between the Land Leaguers of Ireland who proclaim their purpose to abolish landlords and the Tory landlords of North Durham an alliance has been struck. The bitterest enemies of Conservative principles are the agent of Conservative victory. The demoralization of the Conservative party was thought to have been pretty complete in Lord Benconsfield's time. But it might be difficult to put one's finger on any single not of political profligacy during Lord Beaconsfield's ascendancy which was, on the whole, so flagrant and so cynical as the compact between Sir George Elliot and Mr. Parnell. By indignities, wrote Bacon, men come to dignities. It would be rash to suppose that Sir George had modelled his political conduct on the maxims of a great writer of the past, or of any writer. But he has supplied a fresh illustration of an ancient rule of political as the fact that he is a large property-owner and employer of labor in the county. He is understood to have spent great sums on the election, but then the outlay on the Liberal side was also lavish. They talk of £20,000 a side. Mr. Laing, his opponent, was little known, while Sir George had some Liberal friends who cared more to help a useful acquaintance than to return a man of their own politics who was a stranger to the county. Sir Willrid Lawson must accept some part of the responsibility for the Liberal defeat. Mr. Laing came forward as a Prohibit onist, and so secured the active hostility of every publican in the divigion, and they are numerous and well organized.

turpitude; and that is as much as could be ex-

But next after Mr. Parnell, Mr. Joseph Cowen deserves mention as a contributor to this triumph of Conservatism. Mr. Joseph Cowen is the Editor and owner of the paper which throughout the North of England has the largest circulation and greatest influence, The Newcostle Chronicle. He is member for Newcastle. He was elected, originally, by Liberal votes. That was in 1874. He early caught the ear of the House by a speech which gratified the taste of a wearied House for novelty. He speaks with much fervor of manner and some picturesqueness of diction. With the help of a Northumbrian accent so peculiar as to confuse the meaning of many sentences, speaking of this sort won a reputation for eloquence which enbsequent performances in a similar vein did not wholly support. From the beginning be was a Radical of the Radicals. Presently he pronounced for Home Rule; a form of sedition which has the allegiance of a large number of Irish electors in Newcastle. His sympathics with the oppressed al. over the world are keen. He took up the cause of oppressed Furk as warmly as of the oppressed Celt, and proved in passionate periods how per fidious it was of the Powers to prevent the Turk from " walloping his own nigger." He reviled the Russians for liberating Bulgaria, as heartily as be did the Bulgarians for allowing themselves to be liberated. But he does not hate a Russian unless be is a Romanoff, and objects to being blown up with bombs. If he is a Nihilist he may count or Mr. Cowen's affection not less surely than a Land Leaguer who shoots an objectionable landlord from behind the convenient hedge. Mr. Cowen's politics, in short, are of a purely feminine kind. He is a professor of the politics of emotion. He is a sincere man, but what he supposes to be his convictions are only his sentiments. Out of his heart his mouth speaketh; and his head has nothing to do but supply means of articulate expression for the pulsations of the superior organ.

of a man long used to authority in a provincial town who late in life is transferred to the broader arena of an Imperial Parliament. Accustomed to control the views of local grandees, he is astonished to find the chiefs of his party exercising a judgment independent of his own, and taking decisions he had vehemently condemned. During the six years of the last Parliament, he was getting further and further aloof from the party with which he kept up a nominal connection, and among whose members he sat. The Coercion bill completed his estrangement. Against that measure of stern but salutary restric tion he protested, but protested vainly. He was overruled, and he could neither forgive nor forget the overraling of his personal wishes. Ever since the bill passed he has been more Irish than the Irish in denouncing it. In the Irish policy of the Government he can see nothing but Coercion, and he has soized eagerly the first chance of avenging upon the Government its dissent from his own notions on that subject. As soon as Sir George Elliot and Mr. Parnell had come to terms, this Newcastle Nihilist joined the cabal, and gave the Conservative candidate a powerful s upport.

It was nothing to Mr. Cowen that he differed from Sir George Elliot on every point of politics or policy. Describing himself as a radical reformer, in favor of the disestablishment of the Church, the abolition of game laws, the redistribution of seats, and the dismemberment of the Empire, he advocates the election of a candidate opposed to him on every one of these points, and probably on every other that could be named, save one, and that one Coercion, on which Sir George Elliot underwent conversion last week. To compare small things with great, it is the Chatham Ministry over again, a union of patriot (which then meant radical) and courtier; King's friend and Republican; Whig and Tory; treacherous friend and open enemy. If you think it incredible that a man whose reputation was once so high as Mr. Cowen's should be capable of this narrow vindictiveness, you have only to read his own account of the matter, after he had gratified his resentment by defeating the Liberal nominee for North Durham. "We are satisfied," says Mr. Cowen in his own paper, "that the turning point of the contest has been the Government's coercion policy. Sir George Elliot's promise to vote for the release of the political prisoners, and Mr. Laing's obsequiousness to the Cabinet which acts as their jailers, led to the Irish vote being given to the Conservative candidate With it, adds this renegade Liberal, went the votes of a considerable number of "genuine Radicals," who desired thus to emphasize their detestation government by force. And Mr. Cow-n seems real to believe that the backhanded blow he has the dealt at the party and principles he once supporte will enforce upon Ministers that submission to the views of Mr. Cowen which his speeches and th threat of his displeasure failed to extort. He expresses his hope that their defeat in North Durha may lead them to abandon the high-handed as despotic regime which Mr. Forster in their name has introduced into Ireland. What Mr. Parnell, with half Ireland at his back, could not terrorize Ministers into doing, Mr. Cowen expects to accomplish by the apparition of a few scores of North Durham turncoats, with the awful figure of the member for Newcastle at their head. It does not occur to him that, to use Burke's phrase, the pigging together in the same truckle-bed of Sir George Elliot, Mr. Parnell and Mr. Cowen is a spectacle less likely to excite terror than to provoke disgust. ### NEW-BRUNSWICK'S POSTMASTER.

A DEFICIT OF OVER $2,000 FOUND IN HIS AC-COUNTS-AN ACTING POSTMAS ER IN CHARGE OF THE OFFICE-MR. FISHER'S PREVIOUS BREACH OF TRUST.

[FROM A SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT OF THE TRIBUNE.] NEW-BRUNSWICK, N. J., Oct. 1.—This rather slow-going old city is excited over the confirmation of the rumors that were circulated early this week in regard to a deficiency in the accounts of Postmaster Joseph P. Fist tr, who disappeared several days ago, and whos novem hits have not been traced. On Thursday special Agent S tail, of the Post Office Department, arrived here and begat an investigation. He found that the accounts of the postmaster were badly involved, and, after com-municating with Mr. Fisher's family and telegraphing to New-York and Jersey City, and failing to find any trace of the postmuster, he informed Mr. Fisher's bondsiner of the condition of affairs. The bondsinen are Charles S. Hill, Clerk of Middlesex County and cashier of the National Bank of New-Jersey, State Senator Isaac L. Martin, Henry Richmond, a retired coal merchant; ex City Collector Robert G. Miller, and City Treasure Lewis R. Dunham. At Mr. Small's request the bonds ien took charge of the office, and Senator Martin was designated to assume the duties of Acting Postmaster He did so about 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, and soo after, with Mr. Small, made a careful examination of Mr. Fisher's accounts. This showed the deficit to be $2,069-06, after making allowances for salaries accrued

On July 1, when Mr. Pisher made his last report to the Department, his accounts were perfectly correct. Mr. Fisher has been a resident of this city for many years. and has held the office of Postmaster for the hast twelve years, being appointed in President Grant's first term. His commission will expire on the 30th inst. His salary as Postmuster has been $2,200. The largest amount of money that has passed through his hands in any one quarter has been about $3,700. During the last quarter he has appropriated to his own use nearly all the re-ceipts of the office. Acting Postmaster Martin stated this afternoon to THE TRIBUNE correspondent that the amount of the deficiency would of course be made good by the bondsmen. He said that Mr. Fisher had not been in the Post Office since a week ago to-day, and that he is believed to have left this city on Sunday night. Since then nothing has been accurately learned regarding him, although some of his friends say that they saw tim as late as posterday on a Jersey City ferry boat and in Cortlandi-st., New-York. Mr. Fisher's hab I need not stop to consider the minor influences its have not been good of late; he is said to have drank ad at intervals be has absented himself from th is commended warmly by all the citizens of New-Ermswick.

> Special Agent Sharretts, of New-York, came here about three weeks ago to investigate some complaint oncerning numerous lost letters that had been reported. Postmaster, but had a number of interviews with Assistant Postmaster Sheridan, Mr. Sharretts ascertained to his satisfaction that no letascertained to his satisfaction that no let-ters had been tampered with in this office. In some way Mr. Fisher learned of Mr. Sharrettis's visit, and a week ago this evening he went to the post-office on a drunken condition, it is said, accused Mr. Sheridan of compiling against him, and gave him a sum-mary dismissed. Mr. Sheridan has been one of the most faithful, competent and oblighing employee of the office, and when Senator Martin took charge he at once rem-stated Mr. Sheridan in his former position. This action is commended warmly by all the citizens of New-Bruns-wick.

It has come to light that Mr. Pisher, who was the treasurer of the Union building Loan Association, of this city, several months ago embezzled some $25,000 of the source of the several months ago embezzled some $25,000 of the money of the association. When concealment was no longer possible he concessed his delibratency and made over to the association several pieces of property, including the building used as the post office and his handsome residence in East Brunswicz the latter, however, bring heavily mortgaged, and also gave a chattel mortgage for $3,000 upon his homsefold furniture. The transfers were sufficient to cover the embezzlement. The mortgaged furniture is topic soid at auction on Threshog hext.

There are several candidates for the postmastership. The most prominent is Senator Martin. It is likely that he can secure the appelutment if he desires, the only thing that stands in the way being the fact that he has one more year to serve as State Senator. He does not wish to resign that position. If has never been an active politician. It has been suggested that he could be continued as acting postmaster until after the next session of the Legislature. Other contributes a County Collector L. D. Jarrard and John F. Babcock, the editor of The Fredoman.

THE MAD FURY OF A MOB.

BLOOMINGTON JAIL BELEAGUERED BY HUNDREDS OF INFURIATED MEN-A MURDERER LYNCHED. CHICAGO, Oct. 2.-Special dispatches from Bloomington give details of the lynching there last night of Charles Pierce, the imprisoned horse-thief, who shot and killed Jailor Franks, while the latter was conveying him from one cell to another in the jail. The dispatches say that some of the "best" citizens were in the front ranks of the lynchers. Leading business men cheered and encouraged the lynchers, and women waved their handkerchiefs in approbation. For two hours the Sheriff with all his force, the police force and other officials stood at the jail door and fought and plead with the infuriated crowd. When the murderer was raised the first time Officer Bailey, of the police force, imperiled his life by breakng through the crowd and cutting the rope, letting the body fall. Upon attempting to repeat this act of bravery he came near being killed.

The officers called out the Fire Department to queil the riot by throwing water on the crowd. When a steam ire engine arrived on the ground cries of "cut the hose on vinced the firemen that it would not do to undertai convinced the firemen that it would not do to undertake to carry out their instructions, and they retired. The ringing of the fire-bells called hundreds more to the scene and added to the excitement. When the lynching was imminent disparches passed between Governor Cullium and Lieutenant-Governor Hamilton, and the latter was directed by the Governor to tell the Sheriff to call on the milital to proceed life and property, but it was known that the militia could not be assembled. Senator Fifer, formerly State Attorney, and R. B. Forter, State Attorney, did all they could to quiet the mob, promising that the murderer should be tried and punished, but their pleadings and promises were hooted at. "Justice Visition and processes were hooted at." Justice that the introcerer should be tried and plantaset, but their pleadings and priorities were hosted at. "Justice and the Courts are a farce," "We have seen too much o Court quibblings," and other similar remarks were shouted at the officers by the mob, who persisted in their purpose of lynching Fierce, and then dispersed.

BENEFIT OF SMOKE, SULPHUR, ETC.-Profesor Airken, in a paper read before the Royal Society of Edinburg, states that the most active sources of the fog producing particles characterizing such cities as London ic., are the smoke and sulphur given off by coal fires; and, as even gas grates will not prevent the emission of these particles, he thinks it is hopeless to expect that London, and other large cities wherein such fuel is used. can ever be tree from fogs. Inasmuch, however, as more perfect combustion will prevent the discharge of sect flakes, these fogs, says Professor Altken, may be ren dered whiter, purer, and therefore more wholesome, by dered whiter, purer, and therefore more wholesome, by the use of gos grates, such as that recommended by Dr. Stemens. He also draws attention to the deodorizing and antiseptic powers of smoke and sulphar, which, he thinks, probably operate benchically in silling the deadly germs, and disinfecting the foul smells, which clug about the starbant air of logs, and suggests the sanitary caution that, by suppressing smoke, a greater evil may thus be substituted for a lesser one.
